Poetry and Verse

K-1

Hip-Hop Lollipop

by Susan McElroy Montanari
& Brian Pinkney

Rhythmic, rhyming verse and swirling illustrations present a hip-hop version of a reluctant child's bedtime: "Mama says, "Lollipop, stop! / Stop! / Jumping snapping / Nonstop." / Arms and shoulders pop 'n' lock. / Lollie's dancing hip-hop."

H is for Haiku: A Treasury of Haiku from A to Z by Sydell Rosenberg

"When the sun came out / My turtle climbed a rock / And conjured a view." 26 haiku, each starting with a different letter of the alphabet.

Bloom Boom!

by April Pulley Sayre

Dazzling close-up photos and clever two-word rhymes convey the excitement of blooming flowers: "Leaves emerge. / Stalks surge...Petals surge. / Insects swerve." Excellent examples of simple poetry and creative language.

2-3

Bookjoy Wordjoy by Pat Mora

A charming celebration of the wonders of language. This poetry collection takes the reader on a journey of words, books, and our meaningful interactions with them. Coupled with Colón's vivid illustrations, this text makes a joyful read aloud.

The Undeclared by Kwame Alexander

An inspiring tribute to black history by two of children's literature's best contributors. Alexander's poetic text together with Nelson's distinctive and detailed paintings show us the events that shaped history. A wonderful bridge for young readers to have courageous conversations.

Earth Verse: Haiku from the Ground Up by Sally M. Walker

Told completely in haiku, this one of a kind collection offers readers a glimpse of Earth's glories, both on and below the surface. A true beauty for fans of poetry or science; this book is where the two meet.

4-5

This Promise of Change by Jo Ann Allen Boyce and Debbie Levy

Jo Ann Allen was one of the first black students to enroll in an integrated school in Tennessee. She tells her powerful, history-making story using various forms of poetry and quotations from people involved. Powerful history/poetry/autobiography combination.

Every Month is a New Year by Marilyn Singer

Made in the shape of a calendar, this multicultural gem shares cultural observances across the globe and throughout the year. Breathtaking collage art complements each month's celebrations. A wonderful resource of global celebrations.

They Call Me Güero: A Border Kid's Poems by David Bowles

Cleverly narrated by 12 year-old Güero, this novel in verse shares Mexican-American life on the border. His valuable perspective offers opportunities for discussion on complex topics such as skin color, prejudice, and immigration.
